Was in OC this past weekend and was wondering what all the signs were about. This is so sad. I hope someone comes forward.

Everyone knows who did it. The issue is instead of stopping and trying to save the kid, Tyler Mailloux instead decided to flee home and hide the car in the garage. Afterwards his mom and her rich boyfriend called a defense attorney from the other side of the bridge and got ahead of the police serious question: how did they "get ahead" of the police? did the cops not find the car?

I've heard different things about if the family showed the police the car or if the police came with warrants. That parts not super clear, but it was about a week after the accident, if I remember correctly. The weird thing is even if you're arguing that you thought you hit an animal, you wouldn't hide the car in the garage out of site for weeks. It wasn't being driven, it wasn't taken to a body shop, it was just hiding in the garage.

There is a lot of accusations being thrown around locally. I could spend all day going on about rumors that I've heard. But I think they are arguing that you can't prove who was driving the car. I'm sure by the time they "talked" to the police they pretty much had the lawyer write them a script

i know someone who got in a dui accident in OCMD and police easily had video of him buying drinks at a bar. no way there isn't video evidence of Tyler and the Mercedes that night. his privilege is protecting him. justice for gavin.
